It is extremely important to Petri.com that our point of view on products and platforms remains trustworthy and the person delivering them is an SME in that particular area of IT. We do not sell paid articles as reviews on Petri.com as we believe that our Editorial team’s integrity must live up to the trust that the Petri brand has built and maintained with its audience for over 23 years. Building up trust and expectations with brands is necessary so that our audience continues to associate us with quality content and recommended software.
